MHM MERGES WITH INGLIS ROWE

Business advisory and consulting firm mhm has merged with chartered accounting firm Inglis Rowe to create one of Adelaide's most experienced and progressive management consulting, corporate finance and accounting firms.

The addition of the 30-strong team from Inglis Rowe takes the total number of staff at mhm to 143 including 13 partners.

mhm Managing Partner and CEO John Hood said the merger was in line with the firm's growth strategy in South Australia.

"It is an ideal strategic fit, with mhm and Inglis Rowe sharing similar values, culture and commitment to professionalism and client service," Mr Hood said.

"Most importantly for our clients, the integration allows us to offer our broad range of tailored professional services with a greater pool of resources and complementary industry expertise."

Established in 1992, mhm is a leading South Australian-based accounting, corporate finance and management consulting firm with its head office at Greenhill Rd Unley, and offices in Perth and Hong Kong.

Inglis Rowe was founded in Adelaide in 1989. It is also located on Greenhill Rd and is a well respected South Australian firm offering a range of tailored business, accounting and financial services. Inglis Rowe also has Port Augusta and Port Pirie offices, however they will remain independent from the merger.

The combined entity will trade as mhm and be based at mhm's current offices at 121 Greenhill Road, Unley.

mhm continues to experience growth despite the challenging economic conditions, with forecast growth for the year ending 30 June 2010 of over 30%.

"The core philosophies of both IR and mhm, are to take a personal approach to business. This is one of the key reasons this partnership with Inglis Rowe works. mhm and IR are truly aligned in how we always strive to serve our clients above all else and care for our staff. This results in trusted, long-standing client and staff relationships which we highly value," Mr Hood said.

"While we now have increased resources and expertise to support mhm's Adelaide, Perth and Hong Kong offices, our priority remains in providing the personal and responsive service we pride ourselves on."
